

Emerging Technology

Our engineering and research teams identify new technologies to help your organization cut through the noise and find viable solutions for your infrastructure.

The number of start-ups and new technologies on hand today is overwhelming. It is difficult to sift through all the solutions coming into the market, and equally as difficult to decipher which ones are viable, long-term options for your organization.

Trace3 helps organizations by finding, vetting, and presenting information based on our multi-faceted methodology and algorithm. We are uniquely positioned with experienced engineers, a dedicated research team, and premier relationships with venture capital firms to discover and evaluate new technologies for implementation into your infrastructure.

With sweeping changes in Cloud, Virtualization, Big Data, the Internet of Things, and more, Trace3 sifts through the vast array of promising companies to offer valuable information on emerging technologies that are a good fit for your company.

KNOWLEDGE

Trace3 works with our Venture Capital partners in Silicon Valley to get early insight and access into whom they're investing and what business problems they're trying to solve. Combining the cutting-edge technologies our engineers encounter and our 360 View Application, we compare, analyze, and present to you in a collaborative fashion.

INTELLIGENCE

Trace3's ability to evaluate technologies is based on our evaluation algorithm - the 360 View Application. With this proven assessment process, Venture Capital insight, an experienced research team, and the engineers who provide field expertise, we bridge the gap between our customers and new technologies to provide critical intelligence on new companies and emerging solutions.

EXPERTISE

The Trace3 team strategically plans for the implementation of new solutions in your organization. We work with you on developing technology road maps to determine the best course of adoption and integration with your existing infrastructure and plan for longevity within your organization.
